team analysed the financial figures and reviewed revenues and cost trends. Mr Daniel Barth also launched the process of finding an investor with a view to achieving a long-term solution for the specialist retailer. Dr Michael Saatmann from consultancy INTRION Gesellschaft für Managementberatung mbH assisted in this process. Negotiations were held with several interested parties during this. The restructuring measures already initiated in the provisional insolvency proceedings, and consequently the closure of unprofitable stores and adjustment of cost structures, have been successfully concluded with the sale.

Mr Daniel Barth said, "Since it filed for insolvency, we have kept the business running, optimised its operations and achieved solid sales figures. The loyalty shown by customers at every stage of these proceedings has contributed in a significant way to us now being able to achieve a solution that will preserve four feiermeier stores and save jobs. The creditors will also benefit from this outcome."

Ideal acquisition

Ms Daria May, the new investor and managing director, will maintain the familiar feiermeier brand. The businesswoman has extensive experience in the trading and distribution of party supplies and accessories. She already runs 'Das Kostümland', which specialises in fancy dress and party articles. Customers can buy goods and get advice via an online shop as well as an outlet store in Postbauer-Heng, south-east of Nuremberg.
